Have a nice walk on natural trails

The hiking trails, old roads and hunters' paths scattered among the mountains of Lanyang were once used for communication, supplies, patrols, hunting and production by the early inhabitants. They recorded not only the history of the Lanyang region's development but also how the mountains have changed over the years. By creating a network of the trails, mountain tribal settlements and scenic locations can all be linked together, creating a regional eco-tourism network or corridor.
